Leslie (Lili) Dwight, Founder of Galactic Smarties, (www.galacticsmarties.com), has focused for the past twenty-plus years on hardware and software technology development and deployment in the fields of aging and disability.

Lili has developed hardware, software, and Internet products designed to enhance operations for service providers through supporting residents' independence, and holds patents in these areas.

Her work of the past ten years has focused on bringing technology to people that enhances their lives, engages them in meaningful activities, and provides them with the tools to continue to contribute to our world. Her current product, FireGuide, is a personalized fire drill app that uses a caregiver's voice to guide a person to safety.

Ms. Dwight has taught at Harvard and is a frequent speaker, nationally and internationally, on the topic of technology and its uses to support independence.

Her passion for sharing tech's possibilities led her to create the first international hackathon focused on Aging that included older adults (LeadingAge's HackFest).
